WILLIAM McFADDEN ON PATROL SQUADRON

Attached to Patrol Squadron 49, one of 15 units of the Atlantic Fleet Air Wings now engaged in Atlantic Fleet convoy exercises is William M. McFadden, aviation machinist's mate, second class, USN.

The exercises, ranging from Long Island to Panama, are for training in the protection of merchant shipping under wartime conditions.

Transports, tankers and cargo ships are sailing from East coast ports in the same manner as Allied convoys in World War II. Opposing them will be "enemy" forces of submarines, surface raiders and squadrons of land based patrol bombers.

The convoy will be protected by blimps, long range patrol bombers, destroyer units and carrier - based hunter-killer teams.

SEEDSMEN TO MEET FOR SHORT COURSE

Seedsmen and professional workers from throughout Virginia, and from neighboring states, are expected to attend the third annual state short course for seedsmen at Winchester May 22-24.

Discussion on merchandising and other related subjects, and a tour of experimental plots at the Middleburg branch of Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station are planned.

The short course is sponsored by the VPI agronomy department, the Virginia Seedmen's Association, and the State Department of Agriculture. Chairman and co-chairman for the event are Richard D. Chumney, and W. W. Lewis.

Registration will begin Thursday evening, May 22. Tour of the Middleburg station is scheduled for Friday, May 23, and the annual banquet will be held that night. The short course will close at noon Saturday. Speakers for Saturday will be announced later.

HOMEMAKERS' ITEMS

Before buying a can opener, make sure it will pierce the metal easily and cut the lid without leaving sharp or rough edges. Neither should it whittle off bits of metal that will fall in the food.

Very convenient is a can opener that lifts and holds the lid so that it doesn't fall back into the can.

A wall-bracket opener has the advantage of being steady and in position for immediate use. But there are hand-openers that cut cans smoothly and easily.

A punch opener is convenient for milk and fruit juice cans. Best buy is one that makes a hole large enough for easy pouring and turns the edges of the hole inside the can for safety.

Cut grapefruit in half. Remove every other section. Fill empty sections with strawberries or other fruits.

Toys for infants and toddlers should be sturdily constructed, and large enough so the child cannot swallow them, yet not so heavy that they would injure the child if they toppled. The wheels and strings of wooden toys should be securely fastened in place—not with carpet or thumb tacks. Wood surfaces should be smooth and free of slivers and rough spots. No sharp edges should be exposed; all edges should be rounded or turned in, points should be rounded, these safety points in toys for children.

The United States greatest amount of in the world.
